Domaine Gueguen

Céline and Frédéric Gueguen's time to shine

The Gueguen family lives in Préhy, about 7 km south-west of Chablis. This winery is young, established in January of 2013 by both Céline and Frédéric whom had previously been working for larger wine estates in Chablis over the course of 15 years. The Gueguen's are passionate about conservation and respect towards the environment, aiming to create a wine representative of its terroir. Finally, they love sharing their knowledge and estate with their visitors, and have even set up their own Bed and Breakfast.

Between the Auxerrois and Chablisien vineyards, the estate of Céline and Frédéric Gueguen is made up of 23 hectares of vines in the villages of Chablis, Chichè, la Chapelle Vaupelteigne, Saint-Bris and Irancy. Céline comes from a family of wine-growers, originally from Saint Bris le Vineux.

For 15 years, I have been wine-maker in two important renowned domaine in Chablis (Domaine Durup & Domaine Brocard). However, my best wish was to work for myself, so I could understand my wines from the vineyard to the bottle. In that sense, I can share with my clients the life of this passionating craft so varied..... Frédéric Gueguen

It was with determination that I decided to take a new path in April 2013 to become a wine maker in my own right. After having spent 13 years working with my father Jean-Marc Brocard at his Domaine, in the areas of commerce, marketing and wine tourism; I chose to develop my own wine making business. My wish is to share this experience with you, to explain our work and practices and share in the fruits of our harvest... Céline Gueguen
